

Ways To Go Blue

- Blue Bows

Decorate your home , business, or church—inside and out—with blue bows. Bows are available with an informational poster at Gulf Coast Kid’s House; 595-5800.

- Blue Wreaths

Attract questions from your neighbors with an eye-catching blue wreath. Use the opportunity to discuss child abuse prevention.

- FBTB T-shirt

Encourage your employees to purchase a FBTB t-shirt to wear on Fridays throughout the month of April.

- Blue Workspace

Transform your cubicle or desk into a conversation starter. Blue balloons, notepads, pens, etc.

- Blue News

Incorporate the FBTB message into your newsletters, bulletin boards, or reports.

- Blue Bulletin Boards

Dedicate a bulletin board to the From Blue To Better campaign—showcase prevention techniques and encourage open discussion of child abuse.

- Blue Chalk Campaign

Gather your fellow educators or students and cover your school’s sidewalks with the From Blue To Better message.

in your community

- Prevention Pinwheels

Visit www.frombluetobetter.org to print out a pinwheel pattern and instruction guide. Go one step further and gather your friends for a pinwheel making party! Take a photo of your creation and share on the From Blue to Better Facebook, Twitter, or Instagram pages.

- Get Involved, Be An Advocate

Don't let your involvement end when April does. Seek out your local child protection agency and discover ways you can get involved. Children suffering from child abuse count on community leaders like you to be their voice.

- Recognize the Signs

Learn about child abuse. Know the signs and ways to report suspected child abuse. Gulf Coast Kid's House offers specific child abuse prevention courses for children and adults. Learn more at www.gulfcoastkidshouse.org

- Report Suspected Neglect or Abuse

We are too often tricked into believing our little actions have little impact. One phone call could not only save the life of a child experiencing abuse, but could also save their future—help make it bright!
